The Home Building Technology of the Future.....is here today!

Homes Framed with Genesis™ are...

Stronger, More Efficient & of Higher Quality

Genesis® is a superior home building solution which incorporates sophisticated design technology, high quality steel framing materials and a unique manufactured-approach to residential framing construction. A new technology, for a new generation of homebuyers with higher standards for quality and a genuine concern for the future of our environment.

This leading-edge building technology has been developed to offer homebuyers greater choice. More of the homes they really want. Comfortable, safe, energy efficient and environmentally sound homes which incorporate the latest advances in home building construction.

The structural integrity of Genesis® steel framing means straight walls without the warping or shrinkage associated with conventional framing methods. It also means reduced drywall screw popping, cracking, crowning of floor joists, and roof truss uplift. This results in a home of superior durability and fire resistance which looks no different than any traditionally framed home.

In addition to the countless homebuyer benefits, steel panelization is the most environmentally friendly building system in the world. Genesis® substantially reduces on-site landfill waste and requires no chemical additives to guard against the harmful effects of mildew, moisture, or termites. It also preserves our vital natural resources.
